Turkish M&A environment struggled with serious economic challenges in 2018; currency collapse, rising borrowing costs and corporate indebtedness, high inflation, slowing economy all had caused difficulties in deal-making. Nevertheless, investors carried out M&A activities across sectors and generated a total deal volume of c. US$12.0 billion through 256 deals.

Foreign strategic investors pursued deal opportunities with a broader and long-term perspective and contributed to the annual deal volume to a great extent. While the total deal number of foreign investors remained almost flat compared to 2017, their total deal volume doubled the level in 2016 and grew by 38% y-o-y, owing to a few sizeable deals.

A few big ticket transactions dominated the annual deal volume; only 4% of the total number of deals made 63% of the total deal value. On the other hand total deal number was driven by small and middle market transactions, involving numerous start-ups.

After an all-time high deal number in 2017, both deal volume and deal number of financial investors decreased significantly in 2018, indicating the lowest level of activity since 2010. While private equity firms were extremely quiet except for a couple of successful exits, overall financial investor deal number was supported by continued early-stage M&A activity, which made up 32% of the total annual deal number.

Looking ahead, local and global challenges, including trade tensions, expected global economic downturn, rising borrowing costs and corporate debt levels, lead us to take a prudent approach for the near term. Nonetheless, we strongly believe investors will maintain their strategic focus on the Turkish market and will pursue M&A opportunities across sectors.

On behalf of our corporate finance team in Deloitte Turkey, we are delighted to share our annual Turkish M&A review, featuring our analyses and views regarding the M&A market here.

Strategic investors were at the forefront of M&A activities in a challenging year

Despite challenging economic conditions reducing appetite for deal-making, annual deal volume totalled c. US$12.0 billion through 256 deals in 2018 and managed to grow for two consecutive years after a historic dip in 2016. A handful of big-ticket transactions by strategic investors dominated the annual deal volume. Foreign investors, by cherry-picking M&A opportunities across sectors, generated 63% of the total annual deal volume. Early-stage investments made a remarkable contribution of 32% to the total annual deal number while private equity deal activity saw one of its lowest levels in the last decade.

While 2018 was a turbulent year due to a number of economic and political challenges, Turkish M&A market demonstrated a better performance in terms of deal volume compared to the previous two years. Out of 256 deals, 115 had a disclosed value adding up to c. US$9.2 billion. Considering the estimated value of deals with undisclosed values, total M&A volume was around c. US$12.0 billion in 2018, representing an increase of 17% y-o-y (2017 – US$10.3 billion via 295 deals) owing to the material contribution of a handful of big ticket transactions, especially by foreign strategic investors. While total number of deals contracted by 13% y-o-y, overall deal number was driven by numerous small and middle market transactions, including a significant number of early-stage M&A which represented 32% of the total annual deal number (82 out of 256 deals).

The share of foreign investors in the total annual deal number was again modest at 29% with 74 transactions, broadly similar to the previous year (2017 – 70 deals), but those investors played a dominant role in the total deal volume by making up 63% of the total annual deal value, highest contribution since 2015. Total annual deal volume of foreign investors was c. US$7.6 billion (including estimates for undisclosed values), doubling the level in 2016 and representing a y-o-y growth of 38% mainly due to a couple of sizeable deals (2017 – c. US$5.5 billion). On the other hand, Turkish investors were involved in 182 deals (71% of total annual deal number) with a total deal value of c. US$4.4 billion (including estimates for disclosed values), representing 37% of the total annual deal volume (2017 – US$4.8 billion). While their deal number decreased by 19% y-o-y, their deal volume remained fairly similar to the previous couple of years.

The ten largest transactions comprised 63% of the total annual deal volume (including estimates for undisclosed values), delivering the highest contribution since 2012. The largest transaction of the year was the announced acquisition of Denizbank by Emirates NBD Bank (regulatory approval and closing procedures still ongoing) with a deal size of US$3.2 billion and alone represented 27% of the total annual deal volume. A few big ticket transactions dominated the annual deal volume; only 4% of the total number of deals made 63% of the total deal value (based on an analysis including estimates for undisclosed values). 221 transactions each with a deal value less than US$50 million, which accounted for 86% of the total deal number represented only 12% of the total deal value (based on an analysis including estimates for undisclosed values). Similarly, 164 transactions with a deal size less than c. US$10 million accounted for 64% of the total deal number, while representing only 3% of the total deal volume (based on an analysis including estimates for undisclosed values), indicating the vivacity of the small market transactions, mainly involving start-up companies with extremely small price tags. The average deal size including all transactions, and the average deal size excluding the ten largest transactions, were around US$47 million and US$18 million, respectively (2017 – US$35 million and US$18 million).

Strategic investors led the overall M&A landscape in 2018. With both deal number and deal volume less than the previous year, financial investors sealed a total of 105 deals with a total deal volume of c. US$1.0 billion (including estimates of disclosed values), which corresponded to a decline of 28% and 62%, respectively.

Financial investor deal volume and its contribution to the total annual deal volume were at one of their lowest levels in the last decade. In the absence of private equity investors, the deal number of financial investors was driven by numerous VC and angel investor-backed small-cap deals, which constituted 78% of the total financial investor deal number. Although private equity firms continued their conservative stance on acquisition front, they accomplished certain successful exits through IPOs or trade sale.

Privatization activity remained limited at around US$1.0 billion, making up 8% of the total annual deal value through 18 deals. While Turkish groups were once again on the stage, privatization activity was driven by the tenders of 9 sugar factories.

Same as previous years, internet & mobile services and technology made strong contributions to the deal activity with 50 and 45 deals, respectively, together corresponding to 37% of the total annual deal number. Manufacturing, services, energy, financial services and food & beverage were among other M&A active sectors. Financial services, logistics & transportation, manufacturing, media and food & beverage sectors were the major contributors to the annual deal volume.

The ratio of annual deal volume to GDP in 2018 was around 1.6%, as compared to 0.8% in 2016. While this may be considered as a slight recovery, it is far below the global average of 5.2% in 2018, indicating the huge upside of the Turkish market. Rising expectations for a global economic slowdown in addition to continued macroeconomic challenges in the domestic market raise concerns about investor appetite for M&A in 2019; however we strongly believe that investors with a strategic and long-term view will continue to invest on selected opportunities in the Turkish market.

Deal Volume and Deal Number

Investor origin

Foreign investors generated a total annual deal volume of c. US$7.6 billion (including estimates for undisclosed values) through 74 deals, while Turkish investors were involved in 182 deals amounting to c. US$4.4 billion (including estimates for undisclosed values). In terms of total contributions, foreign and Turkish investors represented 63% and 37% of the total annual deal volume (including estimates for undisclosed values), respectively, through making up 29% and 71% of the total annual deal number, respectively.

The contribution of foreign investors to total annual deal volume and deal number over the last decade was 55% and 41% on average, respectively. Despite numerous market factors reducing investor appetite in 2018, total deal number of foreign investors remained flat compared to the previous year (but was c. 20% less than the 10-year average) and their total deal volume had been on the rise for two consecutive years, representing the highest contribution to the total annual deal volume since 2015. The annual deal volume of foreign investors grew by 38% y-o-y in 2018, mainly due to a couple of big ticket transactions, namely Denizbank (regulatory approval and closing procedures still ongoing), U.N. Ro-Ro and Oyak Çimento, together making up 66% of the total deal size of foreign investors. On another note, Turkish investors seemed to stay focused on their portfolios rather than on inorganic growth under volatile financial markets. While the annual deal volume of Turkish investors was broadly similar to the previous couple of years, their deal number contracted by 19% y-o-y.

Deal Number By Origin

Foreign Investors' Deal Number By Region

In spite of declining deal numbers over the last few years, from 62 in 2015 to 36 in 2018, European investors once again sealed the highest number of deals among foreign investors and generated 49% of foreign investors' deal activity. While the investors from North America concluded the year with 16 deals, investors from Asia Pacific and Gulf regions had more limited involvement in the deal activity with 13 and 9 deals, respectively. In terms of deal value, investors from UAE, Denmark and Taiwan contributed to the foreign investors' deal volume to a great extent. Investors from the USA continued their interest in the Turkish market and took part in 15 deals. In addition to North American investors, investors from Germany, Italy and UK were among active investors.

Breakdown of Foreign Investors' Deal Volume By Region^(*)

Deal Number

In 2018, we observed a fairly well-balanced mix of foreign and Turkish investors across sectors. While internet & mobile services, technology, financial services, manufacturing, e-commerce, services and food & beverage sectors hosted both foreign and Turkish investors, the former were also involved in a number of agriculture & breeding deals and the latter had a focus on energy sector deals.

While foreign investors' deal volume was dominated by financial services, logistics & transportation and manufacturing sectors, together representing 72% of foreign investors' annual deal volume (including estimates for undisclosed values), Turkish investors' deal volume was mainly generated through notable deals in media, food & beverage, energy and infrastructure.

Financial investor activity

With both annual deal number and deal volume significantly less than the previous year, financial investors were involved in 105 transactions amounting to c. US$1.0 billion (including estimates for undisclosed values), which corresponded to a decline of 28% and 62%, respectively.

Financial investor deal activity made up 8% and 41% of total annual deal volume and total annual deal number, respectively. Except for some major exits, private equity landscape was silent in terms of new acquisitions but more focused on portfolio companies under challenging economic and financial environment. In the absence of private equity deals, the total annual financial investor deal volume and its contribution to the overall annual deal volume saw one of their lowest levels in the last decade. On the other hand, continued early-stage M&A activity supported the overall financial investor deal number.

Among financial investors, the largest share (c. 78%) in total deal number once more belonged to venture capital and angel investors with a total of 82 transactions although less by 27% y-o-y (2017 - 112 transactions).

On the other hand, the contribution of VC and angel investors to the total deal volume of financial investors was limited at 6% only, indicating a remarkably average small ticket size of c. US$0.6 million. Remaining financial investors including private equity firms, development banks and private wealth investors together were involved in 23 deals, far below their historical levels, which corresponded to a decline of c. 32% y-o-y.

On another note, private equity firms and some other financial investors accomplished several successful exits through IPOs or trade sale. Some of such exits namely U.N. Ro-Ro (exit by Actera and Esas Holding), Aksa Enerji (exit by Goldman Sachs) and Gram Games (exit by Hummingbird Ventures) were also listed among the top ten deals of the year (based on the disclosed values). Similarly, we observed some private equity firms such as Goldman Sachs and Mayhoola Investments having increased their stakes in their existing investments by buying out their Turkish partners' shares. We also witnessed certain investment activities by development banks and other financial institutions through IPOs, such as stake acquisition by EBRD in Şok Marketler and Akiş GYO.

The largest transaction involving a financial investor was the acquisition of part of the shares of D.ream International by Temasek Holdings and Metric Capital Partners for a consideration of c. US$200 million.

Furthermore, the transactions involving financial investors were spread over a wide range of sectors, though internet & mobile services, technology and e-commerce remained as the special focus of venture capital firms and angel investors. On the other hand, most of the financial investors' deal volume came from deals in restaurants & hospitality and manufacturing sectors.

Privatizations

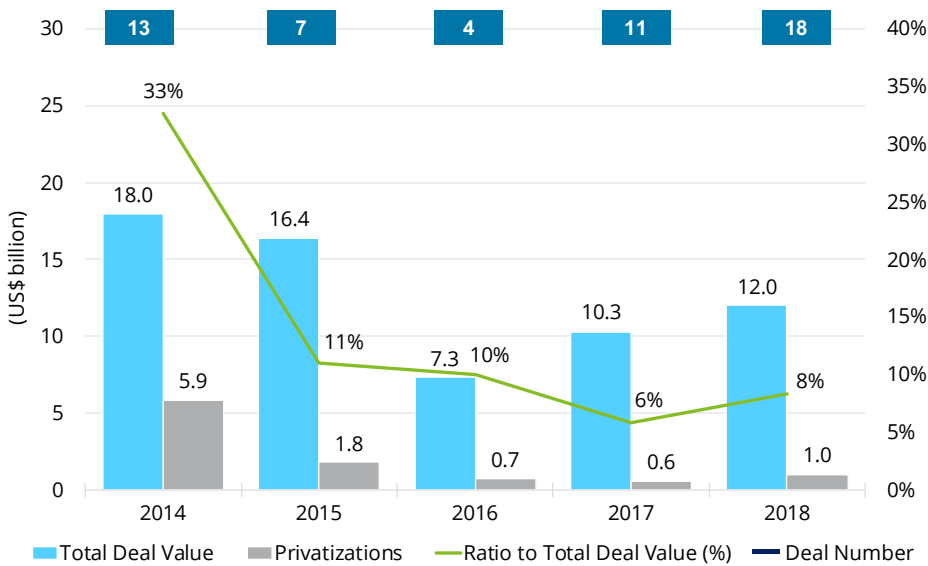

Privatizations generated a deal volume of c. US$1.0 billion through 18 transactions and represented c. 8% of the total annual deal volume, a modest contribution as in recent years.

Privatization activity was mostly driven by the tenders of 9 sugar factories, which made up 79% of the total privatization volume.

In addition to sugar factories, privatization transactions involved a number of hydroelectric generation assets, Yeniköy-Yatağan mining license, Tekirdağ Port and Foça Holiday Village. Similar to historical trends, Turkish groups led the privatization activity in 2018.

SDIF remained silent in terms of deal activity; considering numerous companies under administration, the upcoming period may witness more activity on that front.

Deal size ranges

In line with previous years, small and middle market transactions drove the total annual deal number. 221 transactions each with a deal value less than US$50 million, corresponding to 86% of the total deal number, represented only 12% of the total annual deal volume. Conversely, transactions each with a deal value higher than US$250 million, corresponding to only 4% of the total number of deals, represented 63% of the total deal value.

On another note, the contribution of the ten largest deals (based on disclosed values) to the total deal volume was 63% (2017 – c. 50%), representing the highest contribution since 2012.

The average size of the top ten deals was c. US$752 million, significantly higher than 2017 average of c. US$510 million. The announced acquisition of Denizbank by Emirates NBD Bank (regulatory approval and closing procedures still ongoing) was the largest transaction of the year, alone representing 27% of the total annual deal volume. Investments of DFDS, Taiwan Cement Corporation, Zynga and Temasek Holdings & Metric Capital Partners in U.N. Ro-Ro, Oyak Çimento, Gram Games and D.ream International, respectively, were among other major deals of the year, sealed by foreign investors.

The largest deal succeeded by Turkish Investors was the acquisition of Doğan Media Group by Demirören Holding for a consideration of US$929 million.

The average deal size including all deals, and the average deal size excluding the ten largest transactions were around US$47 million and US$18 million, respectively (2017- US$35 million and US$18 million, respectively). While this major gap underlines the plentitude of small-cap deals, the average deal size excluding venture capital and angel investors deals was US$69 million, highest of the last three years (2017 – US$55 million, 2016 – US$40 million).

Sectoral overview

Deal Number

Similar to recent years, internet & mobile services and technology remained at the top of the list by sectors with 50 and 45 deals, respectively, due to the continued interest of early-stage investors. Despite a slight decline y-o-y, the number of transactions in those two sectors contributed to the total annual deal number by 37%, roughly consistent with 2017 (c. 35%).

Manufacturing (23), services (22) and energy (18) were also remarkable by deal number followed by financial services (17), food & beverage (13) and e-commerce (11).

Financial services, manufacturing, infrastructure, logistics & transportation, media and food & beverage provided a major contribution to the total M&A volume (including estimates for undisclosed values). As the high-ranking sectors, the majority of the deal volumes in the mentioned sectors were driven by only a couple of big ticket transactions. As opposed to their top rankings in deal number list, technology and internet & mobile services made only 3% of the total annual deal volume, indicating a significantly small ticket size in these sectors.

In addition to M&As, we also witnessed several initial public offerings involving sizeable companies in the retail, energy and healthcare sectors.
